

Why Care to Be Fair?

An Introduction to Practical Reasoning and Value Theory

Mark Mercer

Winter Semester, 2021-2022
© Mark Mercer 2021

Table of Contents

Chapter Eight: Implications of Relativism

1. Reviewing the relativistic conception of value
2. We all belong to many cultures
3. The culture to which the agent belongs is not the only potentially relevant culture
4. Reasons and evaluations

Chapter Nine: Relativism about Value and Tolerance

1. What relativism about value isn't
2. Cross-cultural judgement
3. Relativism and tolerance
4. A relativist defence of tolerance
5. A critique of the relativist defence of tolerance

Chapter Ten: Values Are Real

1. Compare and contrast
2. Realism about value
3. Don't make of yourself an exception

Chapter Eleven: Respect

1. "Respect" disambiguated
2. Respect for personhood or autonomy
3. Manipulating, humiliating and burdening
4. Burdening others disrespectfully

Chapter Twelve: Punishment, Freedom and the Golden Rule

1. Respect in the context of penalties and punishment
2. Respect for autonomy and the civil liberties
3. Rules golden, silver and platinum

Chapter Thirteen: Reasoning about What to Do

1. Practical reasoning and relativism about value
2. Practical reasoning and realism about value
3. Practical reasoning when nothing is right or wrong and nothing is good or bad
4. Arguments against the subjectivist conception of practical reasoning
5. Two discussions of torture

Chapter Fourteen: Why Cultivate Virtue?

Chapter Fifteen: The Wisdom of Loving Fairness